

Abadilla 5 'victims of speedy, but false, justice'

By Marlon Barrios

THE SUPREME COURT's speedy decision affirming the conviction of five men in connection with the 1983 killing of Senator Benigno Aquino Jr. (Bongbong) has been widely seen as a "speedy" justice, but critics say it is a "false" justice. The court's decision, a 5-2 majority, is the high court's first ruling on a case involving a political assassination.

Manila's weekly Inquirer has been the main source of information about the case, and its coverage has been widely seen as a "speedy" justice, but critics say it is a "false" justice.

Abused kids prone to mental disorders, troubled adult lives

CHILDREN who were sexually abused in their early years are more likely to develop mental health problems as adults, a new study has found.

The study, which was conducted by researchers at the University of California, San Diego, found that children who were sexually abused before the age of 10 were more likely to develop mental health problems as adults.

The researchers found that children who were sexually abused before the age of 10 were more likely to develop mental health problems as adults, including depression, anxiety, and post-traumatic stress disorder.

The study also found that children who were sexually abused before the age of 10 were more likely to have a history of substance abuse and to be involved in a violent relationship as adults.

The researchers concluded that the findings of their study suggest that children who are sexually abused need to receive appropriate support and treatment to help them cope with the trauma of their experiences.

The study was published in the journal Child Abuse and Neglect. The researchers are now working to develop interventions that can help children who have been sexually abused to overcome the long-term effects of their trauma.

The researchers also found that children who were sexually abused before the age of 10 were more likely to have a history of substance abuse and to be involved in a violent relationship as adults.

Consumer confidence index hits highest in Q3

Manila, July 10 — The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) today announced that the Consumer Confidence Index (CCI) for the third quarter of 2013 reached its highest level in over a decade, reflecting a strong recovery in consumer sentiment.

The CCI, which is a composite index of various factors such as income, employment, and inflation, rose to 103.5 in the third quarter, up from 101.5 in the second quarter and 100.0 in the first quarter. This marks the first time the CCI has reached this level since the third quarter of 2002.

The BSP attributed the increase in the CCI to a combination of factors, including a steady recovery in the economy, a decline in inflation, and a rise in government spending. The central bank also noted that the CCI's rise was consistent with the overall recovery in the economy, as evidenced by the increase in the Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and the decline in the unemployment rate.

The only other president to do so was Grover Cleveland, who served from 1895 to 1901. Since then, no president has been elected to two consecutive terms. The only president to be elected to two nonconsecutive terms was Grover Cleveland, who served from 1895 to 1901.
